Poetry.

The Old School-House.

I sat an hour to-day, John,
Beside the old brook stream,
Where we were school-boys in old time
When manhood was a dream.
The brook is choked with fallen leaves,
The pound is dried away,
I scarce believe that you would know
The dear old place to-day.

The school-house is no more, John,
Beneath our locust tree,
The wild rose by the window's side
No more waves in the breeze;
The scattered stones look desolate,
The sod they rested on
Has been plowed up by stranger hands
Since you and I were gone.

The chestnut trees is dead, John,
And, what is sadder now,
The broken grapevine of our swing
Hangs on the withered bough;
I read our names upon the bark,
And found the pebbles rare
Laid up beneath the hollow side,
As we had pilled them there.

Beneath the grass-grown bank, John,
I looked for our old spring,
That bubbled down the alder path
Three paces from the swing;
The rushes grow upon the brink,
The pool is black and bare,
And not a foot for many a day
It seems has trodden there.

I took the old road, John,
That wandered up the hill,
'Tis darker than it used to be,
And seems so lone and still;
The birds yet sing upon the boughs
Where once the sweet grapes hung,
Aut not a voice of human kind
Where all our voices sung.

I sat me on the fence, John,
That lives as in old time,
The same half pannel in the path
We used so oft to climb,
And thought how o'er the bars of life
Our playmates had passed on,
And left me counting on the spot
The faces that were gone.

Selected Story.

The Doctor's Platform.

"Now, doctor, there was a queer thing happened to a student in my class in the seminary. I don't suppose that you are much interested in a love-story, but I would just like to tell you this one, because I think you dare not apply your women's rights principles to it in every part. Theories often fall when practically applied, you know."

"Go on, Hu, go on; I'd like to hear the story. And as for my principles, they'll bear applying anywhere," and the old doctor rubbed his hands together confidently.

"This friend of mine, Gilbert," said Hu, "was like myself, poor. A long time ago, when he was a boy, the son of a poor widow, the lot on which he lived joined at the back the lot on which lived a Mr. Morton, then a thriving merchant, now the principal capitalist in that part of the country. As there was a back between the lots, my friend was the constant playmate from earliest childhood of Jennie Morton. He built her playhouses out of old boards, he moulded clay bricks for her use, and carved tiny toys out of pine blocks for her amusement. As he grew larger, and as Jennie's father grew richer, and came to live in great style, Henry grew more shy. But by all the unspoken language of the eyes the two never failed to make their unchanging regard known to each other.

"Henry went to college early. At vacation the two met. But the growing difference in their social relations could not be felt. Jennie's friends were of a different race from his own. Her parents never thought of inviting him to their entertainments. And if they had, a rusty coat and a lock of money to spend on kid gloves, would have effectually kept him away. He was proud. This apparent neglect stung him. It is true that Jennie Morton was all the more kind. But his quick and foolish pride made him fancy that he detected pity in her kindness. And all this made him determined to place himself in a position in which he could ask her hand as her equal. But you do not understand, doctor as I do, how irresistible is this conviction of duty in regard to the ministry. Under that pressure my friend settled it that he must preach. And now there was before him a good ten years of poverty at least. What should he do about it?

"In this extremity he took advice of a favorite theological professor. The professor advised him not to seek the hand of a rich girl. She would not be suited to the trials of a minister's life. But finding that Henry was firm in his opinion that this sound general principle did not in the least apply to this particular case, the professor proceeded to touch the tenderest chord in the young man's heart. He told him that it would be ungenerous, and in some sense dishonorable for him to take a woman delicately brought up into the poverty and trial incident to a minister's life. If you understood, sir, how morbid his sense of honor is, you would not wonder at the impression this suggestion made upon him. To give up the ministry was in his mind to be a traitor to God To win her, if he could, was to treat ungenerously her whose happiness was dearer to him, a thousand times, than his own."

"I hope he did not give her up," said the doctor.

"Yes, he gave her up, in a double spirit of mediæval sacrifice. Looking towards the ministry he surrendered his love as some of the old monks sacrificed love, ambition and all other things to conscience. Looking at her happiness, he sacrificed his hopes in kindly devotion for her welfare. The knights sometimes gave their lives. He gave more.

"For three years he did not trust himself to return to his home. But having graduated and settled himself for nine months over a church, there was no reason why he shouldn't go to see his mother again. And once in the village, the sight of the school-house and the church revived a thousand memories that he had been endeavoring to banish. The garden walks and especially the apple-trees, that are the most unchangeable of landmarks, revived the old passion with undiminished power. He paced his room at night. He looked out at the new house of his rich neighbor. He chafed under the restraint not to think again of Jennie Morton. It was the old story of the monks who thinks the world subdued, but who finds it all et once about to assume the mastery of him. I do not know how it might have ended, but it was all at once stopped from without.

"There reached him a rumor that Jennie was already the betrothed wife of Colonel Pearson, who was her father's partner in business. And indeed Colonel Pearson went in and out of Mr. Morton's gate every evening, and her father was known to favor the suit.

"Jennie was not engaged to him, however. Three times she had refused him. The fourth time, in deference to her father's wishes, she had consented to "think about it," for a week. In truth Henry had been home ten days and had not called upon her, and all the weary waiting seemed in vain. When the Colonel's week was nearly out, she heard that Henry was to leave in two days. In a sort of desperation she determined to accept Colonel Pearson without waiting for the time appointed for her answer. But that gentleman spoiled it all by his own overconfidence.

"For when he called, after Jennie had determined on this course, he found her so full of kindness that he hardly knew how to behave with moderation. And so he fell to flattering her, and flattering himself at the same time he knew the ins and outs of girl's heart, he complimented her on the many offers she had received.

"And I tell you what," he proceeded, "there are plenty of others who would lay their heads at your feet, if they were only your equals. There's that young parson, Gilbert, I think they call him, that is visiting his mother, in the unpainted and threadbare looking little house that stands behind this one. I've actually seen that fellow in his rusty musty coat, stop and look after you on the street, and every night when I go home, he's sitting at the window that looks over this way. The poor fool is in love with you. Only think of it! And I chuckle to myself when I see him and say don't you wish you could reach so high! I declare its funy."

"In that one speech Colonel Pearson dashed his chances to pieces. He could not account for the sudden return of winter in Jennie Morton's manner. And all his sunshine was powerless to dispel it, or to bring back the least approach of spring.

"Poor Jennie! You can imagine, doctor, how she paced the floor all that night. She began to understand something of the courage of Henry Gilbert's heart and something of the manliness of his motives. All night long she watched the light burning in the room in the widow's house; and all night long she debated the matter until her head ached. She could reach but one conclusion. Henry was to leave the day after to-morrow. If any communication should ever be opened between them she must begin it. It was as if she had seen him drifting away forever, and must throw him a rope. I think even such a woman's rights man as yourself would hardly justify her, however, in taking any step of the kind."

"But she could not find a way—she had no rope to throw. Again the Colonel, meaning to do anything else but that, opened the way. At the breakfast-table the next morning she received from him a magnificent valentine. All at once she saw her method. It was St. Valentine's day. The rope was in her hand. Excusing herself from breakfast she hastened to her room.

"To send a valentine to the faithful lover was the uppermost thought. But how? She dare not write her name, for after all, she might offend his prejudices or his pride by so direct an approach. She went to fumbling a drawer for stationery. She drew out a little pine boat that Henry had whittled for her many years before. He had named it "Hope," but the combined wisdom of the little boy and girl could not succeed in spelling the name correctly. And here was the little boat that he had given, saying often afterward that it was the boat they were going to sail in some day. The misspelt name had been the subject of many a laugh between them. Now—But I mustn't be sentimental.

"It did not take Jennie long to draw an exact likeness of the little craft. And that there might be no mistake about it, she spelled the name as it was on the side of the boat "Hoap." There was not another word in the valentine. Sealing it up, she hurried out with it, and dropped it in the postoffice. No merchant sending all his fortune to sea in one frail bark ever watched the departure and trembled for the result of the venture as she did. Spain did not pray half so fervently when the invincible Armada sailed. It was an unuttered prayer—an unutterable prayer. For heart and hope were the lading of the little picture boat that sailed out that day, with no other wind but her wishes in her sails.

"She sat down at her window until she saw Henry Gilbert pass the next street corner on his morning walk to the postoffice. Three minutes after he went home evidently in a great state of excitement with her valentine open in his hand. After a while he went back again toward the postoffice and returned. He had taken a reply!

"Jennie again sought the office. There were people all around with those hideous things they call comic valentines open in their hands. And they actually seemed to think they were funny! She had a reply. It did not take her long to reach her room and open it. There was another picture of a boat, but the name on its side read "despair." And these words were added:

"Your boat is the pleasantest, but understanding there was no vacant place upon it, I have been obligged to take passage in this."

Slowly the meaning forced itself upon her. Henry had fears that she whom he sought engaged was coquetting with him. I think, doctor, you will hardly justify her in proceeding farther with the correspondence?"

"Why not? Hasn't a woman as much right to make herself understood in such a matter as a man? And when the social advantages are on her side the burden of making the advances of ten falls upon her. Many women do it indirectly and are not censured."

"Well you know I'm conservative, doctor, but I'm glad your'e consistent. She did send another valentine. I am afraid she strained this figure of speech about the boat. But when everything in the world depends on one metaphor, it will not do to be fastidious. Jennie drew again the little boat with misspelt name. And this time added five words: "The master's place is vacant!"

"And quite late in the afternoon, the reply was left at the door: "I am an applicant for the vacant place if you will take that of master's mate."

"Good, cried the doctor; said Hubert. "That evening Gough was to lecture in the village, and my friend went, not to hear Gough but to see Mis Jennies Morton at a distance. Somehow in the superfluction of revived hope he had not thought of going to the house to see her yet. He had postponed his departure and had thrown away his scruples. Knowing how much opposition he would have to contend with, he thought, if thought at all, that he must proceed with caution. But some time after the lecture began he discovered the Morton family without Jennie! Slowly it dawned upon him. She was at home waiting for him. He was near the front of the church in which the lecture was held and every inch for aisle was full of people. To get out was not easy. But as he thought of Jennie waiting it became a matter of life and death. If the house had been on fire he would not have been more intent on making his exit. He reached the door, he passed the happiest evening in his life, only to awake to sorrow, for Jennie's father is 'dead set' against the match."

"He had no right to interfere," said the doctor vehemently. "You see I stand by my principles."

"But if I tell the story out I am afraid you would not," said Hubert.

"Why isn't it done?"

"I beg your pardon, doctor, for having used a little craft. I had much at stake. I have disguised this story in its details. But it is true. I am the hero—"

The doctor looked quickly towards his daughter Her head was bent low over her book. Her long hair hung about it like a curtain, shutting out all view of the face. The doctor walked to the other window and looked out. Hubert sat like a mummy. After a minute Dr. Hood spoke.

"Cornelia!"

She lifted a face that was aflame. Tears glistened in her eyes, and I doubt not there was a prayer in her heart.

"You are a brave girl. You have a right to choose for yourself. God bless you both. But it's a great pity Hu is not a lawyer. He pleads so well." So saying, he put on his hat and walked out, leaving the young minister and his betrothed alone.

Senator Pool's Castigation of Frank P. Blair.

[We referred, in our last issue, to the castigation given by Hon. JOHN POOL to the Democratic leader FRANK P. BLAIR. It occurred in the Senate on the 14th ult. We here publish it that our readers may have an opportunity to see it—ED. NORTH CAROLINIAN.]

Mr. President, the Senator from Missouri [Mr. Blair] has referred to a statement of R. C. Badger. Mr. Badger is mistaken in most of the points referred to in his testimony by the Senator from Missouri. There were the statement of two other witnesses taken at the same time, and I presume the Senator from Missouri was not aware of the fact, or else he would not have done me the injustice of suppressing the truth, for both of those witnesses put a different face upon the whole affair. I say, sir, upon that point that I never advised or heard any one advise the arrest of a single individual in North Carolina by name; nor did I ever know, until after I heard of the arrests being made, that any particular man was thought of as a person proper to be arrested. I will state that I never advised violence of any sort toward any man, and that I never advised or heard of a resort to military tribunals for trial until long afterward.

The Senator from Missouri owes to the Ku Klux of the South the efforts which he has made during this discussion. In 1868 the Senator wrote what was known as the Brodhead letter, in which he advises the dispersing of the governments of the South by force, and allowing the "white people" to form their own governments. Upon that letter the Ku Klux organization was based. They are the Senator's friends; they are operating in his behalf now with a hope of elevating him to a position where in the next Congress he can occupy your chair, sir. They are therefore entitled to the efforts which he has made here.

I could not expect less of the Senator from Missouri than I have received. I understood him to say, in the first speech which he made after he became a member of this body, that those Senators who voted for the reconstruction measures of Congress knew that they were unconstitutional when they voted for them. That, if I am not mistaken, was the charge the Senator made.

Mr. Blair. That was my opinion, and that is what Thad. Stevens said, too.

Mr. Pool. Then the Senator charges two thirds of this body with being guilty of perjury——

Mr. Blair. I did not charge them with that.

Mr. Pool. When he says they swore to support the Constitution of the United States and knowingly violated it; if that be not the charge I do not know how the charge could be made.

Mr. Blair. You can make it argumentatively; but I did not make it in any unparliamentary sense.

Mr. Pool. Then the Senator is in the habit of using language so loosely that I could expect little better than the use of language in the same style with regard to North Carolina affairs end to myself.

But, sir, I have been surprised to find the Senator the recipient of letters and information from any sources that choose to obtrude their slanders upon this Senate. I have been still more surprised that the Senator should so far forget the decorum and propriety of a legislative body as to allow himself to be made the medium through which they could sift their slanders over the Senate Chamber.

But, sir, I can say to the Senator that if I would allow myself to play his part I might tell him of some things that were said by these very men whom he is now defending, in the State of North Carolina, in regard to himself, just after the war closed. The Senator was in command of a division of the United States troops that passed through my State and the adjoining State, and the depredations committed by that command have been a word of reproach with North Carolinians from that time to this. If I could suffer myself to follow the Senator I might tell him it was charged that he occupied an elegant mansion from which the owners had been driven, in the town of Cheraw, in South Carolina, with cellars stocked with wines, which were disturbed, and the ornaments in the parlors carried away, and that he afterward boasted that he dispensed the hospitalities of the mansion in a style that would have put to blush the highest of southern chivalry.

I know, sir, that all men are liable to be slandered, and the Senator may see what could be said of himself if such a course could be pursued with propriety on this floor as that which he has pursued.

I might further ask if he knew that his command outraged the venerable Episcopal bishop of North Carolina by robbing him and stripping him. It was charged upon the Senator's command.

I might tell the Senator what was said with regard to the silver plate displayed upon the table, and in the house of a certain gentleman in the city of Raleigh, a story which was rife upon the streets to the Senator's disparagement about that time. I might more particularly tell him in regard to a certain gentleman by the name of O. G. Parsley, whose fine horses were taken from his stables. And I might perhaps do the Senator a kindness if I should ask him whether he did not receive in the city of Washington from Mr. Parsley a letter asking him to return the horses which were then found in his possession. Perhaps the Senator might answer if he chose.

Mr. Blair. I received no such letter, sir.

Mr. Pool. Mr. Parsley has published that he wrote such a one, and that the horses were found in this city to the Senator's carriage; but Mr. Parsley may not tell the truth. I did not follow the Senator's example in suffering those things to be sent me, as everybody seems to send information of a slanderous character to him; nor did I purpose to allow myself to be made the sieve through which such filth should be sifted over the Senate Chamber.

Mr. President, I dislike to engage in these personal attacks or in these personal vindications. The floor of the American Senate is not the place for such things. I am not a very old Senator in this body, but it seems to me that the decorum and propriety of the place should have admonished the Senator that his conduct was not such as it ought to have been, in reading letters from anonymous persons and suffering his associates upon this floor to be attacked by irresponsible parties, himself the medium through whice the attacks are made.

Mr. Blair. What letter did I read that was anonymous attacking anybody on this floor?

Mr. Pool. If I used the word "anonymous," I take it back; I mean parties whose character has not been substantiated before this body.

Mr. Blair. From whom did I read such a letter?

Mr. Pool. The Senator read from a Cincinnati paper. I think that was anonymous too.

Mr. Blair. That letter was from a Republican newspaper, and was avouched by Mr. Biggs, of Deleware.

Mr. Pool. Who is Mr. Biggs, of Delaware?

Mr. Blair. A member of the other House.

Mr. Pool. Mr. Biggs, of Delaware, did not say that that letter was written by any particular individual, or that it contained the truth.

Mr. Blair. He said it was written by the correspondent of the paper.

Mr. Pool. Ah! But that correspondent's name is unknown, and therefore it is anonymous.

Mr. President, the Senator says that if this investigation shall go on, he thinks it will redound greatly to the interest of his party and to the perfect discomfiture of the Radical party by making truthful many of the charges that he has made, If the Senator is so confident of that, I should like to know why he desires the investigation to be discontinued. If he does not fear that his friends will be still further exposed, why is he not in favor of letting the investigation go on? I understand the Senator to be opposed to proceeding with it.

Mr. Blair. The Senator is mistaken. I did not vote for the committee of investigation, because I believed that this Government had no right to go into this investigation and that it had no right to invade the States for this purpose; but since it is voted, I am free to say that I am very glad of it.

Mr. Pool. Did not the Senator say, since the investigation progressed to a very considerable extent, that he hoped it would be continued no further?

Mr. Blair. I did not.

Mr. Pool. I understood the Senator to say so, but he denies it now.

Mr. Blair. I never said so, whether you understood it or not.

Mr. Pool. Well, Mr. President, I think the Senator did say so. Let us see whether he did or not. The Senator says he did not. I have the minority report before me, and on the first page the resolution of the Senate is referred to and given in full raising this investigating committee. On page 3 of the minority report I find the following language:

PUBLICATION OF THE LAWS.

We have received numerous complaints from different localities of the difficulty—nay impossibility of finding out what the recent laws are, some of them asking us to suggest some remedy. We have long thought it due the people that provision be made that all laws of a public nature passed by the Legislature shall be published in such a manner as to reach them. The practice of confining the publication of the laws to a limited number of volumes and furnishing them to a few public officers in the counties does not meet the case. The laws are not the exclusive property of the officers concerned in the administration and execution thereof; the people, who pay the salaries of the officers and who are amenable to the laws have a right to know what their representatives have done and what new statutes they are expected to obey.

It may, possibly, be asking too much at the hands of our law makers to expect them to enlighten the people with regard to the laws, for if the masses understood the law there would be fewer transgressions and a less amount of profitable "pickings" for the lawyers, who, as is well known, quite largely constitute our legislative bodies. But the time has long since gone by when the people can be content to remain in ignorance of that which concerns them so deeply. The intelligent masses demand that they shall have an opportunity of knowing what laws govern them—that the State shall not provide the lawyers with the means of plucking them unless they are also provided with the means of defense—in other words, that the laws for the government to the many shall be revealed to the many, and not to the favored few alone.

The newspaper, which has come to be a distinguishing feature of our civilization, and to which the people look for information, is the proper medium for conveying this species of intelligence to the public, and until provision is made for the publication of the public laws in the newspapers of the State the people will continue to have cause for complaint.

CURSING THE LEGISLATURE.

No set of men ever came into power with better opportunities for making themselves useful, respected and popular than the Democratic members of the Legislature of North Carolina. But they have done neither. Instead of legislating for the public good they at once turned their attention to operating for partisan purposes and partisan ends. They began by removing a sufficient number of Republicans to insure them a two thirds majority in the Senate. This was done in utter violation of law. Then came impeachment—a purely partisan measure, costing the State nearly a hundred thousand dollars. Following this came the Convention movement which was forced through by whip and spur in direct violation of the Constitution, and which will cost the State sixty thousand dollars more. Instead of reducing taxation, thus relieving the people as they pledged to do, they have largely increased this burthen on the tax payers. And in total disregard of their solemn promise to make a short session and thus save expense to the State they prolonged it as long as they could in order to get as many day's pay from the public treasury as possible. Is it any wonder that even honest Conservatives are cursing the Democratic Legislature?

☞ Kenneth R. Cobb, Esq., who has been assigned to this State as Supervisor of the United States Internal Revenue, vice John A. Bridgeland, Esq., is an old and experienced revenue officer. He is a native of North Carolina, and brother to the Hon. C. L. Cobb, who represents the First Congressional District of that State. His first service was as Assessor of the Second District of Virginia, in which position he increased the revenue over five hundred per cent. He is a lawyer by profession, and has been lately engaged with the commission for codifying the United States statutes in revising the internal tax laws. He is most active in bringing offenders to justice; his legal abilities and thorough knowledge of all the laws and regularities of the department give him superior advantages. He enjoys the confidence of the President and the Commissioner.

We clip the above from the Texas State Journal. Mr. COBB is an earnest Republican, an efficient officer and straightforward, honest man. He understands his duty and fearlessly performs it. Because of his known ability he was selected by the Administration to fill the important position he now occupies. The Government will be the gainer from his services.

The editor of the Raleigh Sentinel appears to be somewhat exercised about our position on the Convention question. Because we are not disposed to be foolishly factious, and thus aid him in his ultimate purpose by a disorganization of the Republican Party, he falls to calling us names. It is nothing more than we expected. We shall not oblige him by any retort. We are opposed to the Convention, and believing it can be voted down, we now urge all our friends and all the people to go to the polls and vote against it. This is the shortest way to check the revolutionary movements of those who are persistently trying to keep up disturbance and dissension in our State.

The Democratic papers are loudly denouncing "The Ku Klux infamy." Let them not be misunderstood, however. It is not the outrages committed by the Ku Klux that they complain of. Oh no. It is the Congressional legislation to prevent those outrages that receives their displeasure.

AMUSING.

We are a good deal amused on reading the Democratic papers of the North to see how industriously they are endeavoring to interpret the late address of their friends in Congress according to the prevailing sentiment of the people. Its vague and unmeaning sentences are twisted by various readings into a positive statement of policy. The leaders wish to make the people of the North believe that a "new departure"—to use a slang phrase of the times—is intended, and that the questions of State sovereignty and negro suffrage are forever settled. They might the more successfully do this if the ultra Southern papers would take the hint, and suppress their real opinions about the "lost cause" until after the election. This however they decline to do. Such journals as the Mobile Register and Montgomery Mail will speak out much to the chagrin and annoyance of such Northern Democratic organs as the New York World and Philadelphia Age. These latter are anxious to lull the country into a false sense of security with regard to the future.

The Southern organs may be very impolitic, but they are certainly honest in their outspoken utterances. It is no wonder that the tricky leaders of the North should feel like "cussing" at seeing their duplicity and fraud so timely exposed. We repeat that it is amusing to see the wry faces they are making at the uphill work before them.

HOW COTTON IS RAISED.

Many of our Northern readers, never having seen Cotton growing, do not know how it is raised. A brief article on the subject may not be devoid of interest to them. The seed is planted in rows in the latter part of March or early part of April. In the spring and early summer it requires a hot sun. The blossoms begin to appear in June, and resembles a small hollyhock blossom. The average height of the stalk is from four and a half to five feet, although on rich bottom lands it sometimes reaches the height of eight feet. It is cultivated very much like corn. The picking begins early in autumn and continues till Christmas. This is a more tedious operation than the cultivation. A common hand will pick from fifty to seventy pounds of clear cotton per day. In some sections a cotton crop exhausts the soil more than corn or grain, but in this it seems to improve it.

ELECTRICITY AS A MOTIVE POWER.

Some weeks ago we published an article on galvanic electricity as a motive power. We learn that the subject is attracting wide attention. Caveats are being filed in the Patent Office at Washington for improvements in machinery for using this agent.

The application of the new principle is being studied and experimented with, by which it is claimed that power can be indefinitely multiplied without increasing the size of the battery or the strength of the current. The invention has arrived at that degree of advancement that the most astonishing results are confidently predicted. An inventor has promised to take a ship across the Atlantic with the power evolved from a battery of a single cup. Already a two-horse power engine is in operation, run by a single cup battery, the expense being no more than the cost of keeping up a battery in a country telegraph office.

We regret to learn that Capt. John Carson, of the U. S. Revenue Steamer, "E. A. Steavens," has been ordered to the command of the "Seward," at Washington. Capt. Carson has shown himself to be a most efficient officer and a gentleman while on duty here. His many friends will regret that he is to leave us.—Newbern Times.

We are among the number. We made the acquaintance of Capt. CARSON while he was on duty here and he impressed us favorably both as an officer and a man. Long may he wave.

From present indications the Convention will be voted down by a large majority. We have reliable reports from nearly all sections of the State and we are gratified to find that there is no enthusiam aroused by its friends; that the movement has fallen still born; that the mass of the people are opposed to it. This being so, it is the easiest and most effectual way to dispose of the question—to settle it at the ballot box. We shall have considerable to say on the subject during the canvas.

The grand policy for the South, and especially for North Carolina, is a diversification of our industry. She is rich in natural resources. All that is needed is to develope them. No country has superior advantages for growth, prosperity and progress. What a field is here waiting for capital.

The Democratic Congressmen, in their address, attack the Administration for leaving $80,000,000 in gold in the Treasury. This is perfectly consistent. They defended President Buchanan's Administration for leaving a bankrupt treasury at the commencement of the war.

Gov. CALDWELL has appointed Hon. NATHANIEL BOYDEN, of Rowan county, an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, in the place of Hon. THOMAS SETTLE, resigned.

The Way to Do it.

A Pennsylvanian lately settled in North Carolina—a farmer—appreciating the influence and value of newspapers, came into the city a day or two ago, and subscribed for several copies of the Telegram to be sent to his old neighbors and friends in the land of Penn, with the sole view of informing his people of the natural advantages, attractions and the true state of affairs here, that they may be induced and encouraged to send out more immigrants to our State of their surplus population. It seems to us that our land companies might well take a cue from this old Pennsylvania Dutchman, and flood the Eastern and middle States with North Carolina publications. Look at the results Dr. John has accomplished with his paper at Elizabeth City. He is a Northerner and, recently locating in our State, has induced more immigrants, and of a better class to the section round about Elizabeth City than have come to North Carolina since the war, or for many years previous to that even, and we want to see this sort of thing go on. Raleigh Telegram.

Correspondence.

In Memoriam.

To the Editor of the North Carolinian:

"Friend after friend departs. Who has not lost a friend?" The angel's breath has again lifted the shadow of the cloud from the vale of light and death's gloom caused the tear to flow and aching heart to mourn. Though the noon of life had been passed and its eve gained.

By Maria N. Tisdale, yet fond, pure and true hearts lament her departure and sincerely weep at the announcement of her death.

The sweet affections of the past when mingled, of old, in the beauties and pleasures of home are intimately connected with this friend of happier years. As the golden sunset shedding its mellow rays o'er the waters of our beautiful Pasquotank, so her compassion and sympathy for the sorrow and suffering of others has been remembered, and now in that blessed land, she shall be remembered where sorrow is unknown. Spring with its beautiful flowers and delightful atmosphere has caused reflections of by gone days; with a train of associations implanted in the heart, and the contemplation vividly presents the face of nature, with its bright green fields around our little town in walks enjoyed together. The fulfillment of kind offices, the exercise of heavenly virtues in the performance of christian duties were known to her, ever ready "to weep with those who weep and soothe their feelings in the hour of distress." Religion, with its true spirit in her church threw a drapery of amiableness over her character, and with a cheerful heart life was enjoyed without fear of evil to come. This animating benevolent principle kept in view "the bright side" and with the beautiful scenes of earth made her happy, and while the darkness and gloom of the grave might have been feared, yet hope illuminated the soul and raised her thoughts from nature to nature's God. The devotion to one deprived of maternal influence in the quiet unobtrusive discharge of duty proved her faithfulness. Their affections were inseperably blended; thought and sentiment closely interwoven, and though the deprived will sorrow over the soother of her cares; the guide of her actions who inculcated the graces of mildness, charity and forbearance to adorn her mind and manners with their benificient effects. Yet to the inscrutible dispensation of an all wise Providence may her heart be resigned, and yield to another attraction in heaven, where safe from every storm we hope to rest with loved ones in everlasting blessedness.

Dedication of the Colored Baptist Church.

ELIZABETH CITY, N. C. Apr. 29, 1871.

To the Editor of the North Carolinian:

On Sunday the 23d of April the Colored Baptists of this City held their services for the purpose of administrating the dedication of the new church. The dedication sermon was preached at half past three in the afternoon by Rev. Charles E. Hodges, Pastor of the Colored Baptist Church. The text was, extracted from the 1st Chronicles, 28th Chapter, 20th verse: "And David said to Solomon his son, Be strong and of good courage, and do it: fear not, nor be dismayed for the Lord God, even my God, will be with thee, He will not fail thee, nor forsake thee, until thou hast finished all the work for the service of the house of the Lord."

The attention of the congregation was remarkable during the sermon, also we now render our sincere thanks to the White Baptist members, and Pastor in charge, for the kindness toward us—for giving us privilege to hold service in their church. We feel indebted to them for their kindness, and we shall never forget to offer them before the throne of grace. And we hope the brethren will come around and visit us, as brethren in the Lord. We also return our thanks to our friends, for their liberal donations; and we hope, also, as they see we have not finished our building, they will assist us in making it more comfortable.

Yours Truly

From Belvidere.

BELVIDERE, Perquimans Co., N. C. April 27, 1871.

To the Editor of the North Carolinian:

This spring is some two weeks earlier than usual, or else the energies of the people have been augmented, for we see gardens are much earlier than heretofore.

We feasted luxuriantly on garden peas the 22nd of this month, which is two weeks earlier than we ever had them before, and this morning we gathered and feasted on quite a nice lot of the choicest Albany Strawberries, but are sorry we live too far from E. City to make it convenient to present the Editor with some of our choice garden luxuries, [What a pity, ED.] But so soon as the CAROLINIAN animates the energies of our people to build the anticipated Rail Road to connect E. City with the lovely little village of Belvidere then the Editor will be sure to get some of our luxuries with which our Heavenly Father has been willing to bless us. [We are doing our level best to bring all this about, ED.]

This is a progressive age and let us have more active communication.

Cotton Improves our Soil.

E. CITY, May 1, 1871.

To the Editor of the North Carolinian:

In an editorial in your last issue of the NORTH CAROLINIAN, headed the "Future of North Carolina," you give an amount of statistical information which is enough to convince any unprejudiced person, that this section of the South is the finest Agricultural Country in the United States. But there is one additional piece of information in regard to cotton raising in this locality, which has been omitted in the editorial alluded to, and which has an important bearing upon the Agricultural interests of this section. It is this: that in the States south of us, and indeed in other parts of our own State, land planted in cotton, rapidly deteriorates in productiveness when the crop is raised on the same land for a succession of years, and is liable too, for two years in every five, to be destroyed by insects; whilst here, the crop is never troubled with insects, and the land by successive croppings of this staple is rapidly improved in productiveness, even without manuring, and so much so, that cotton, whilst a very remunerative and certain crop to raise, is considered equal to Red Clover as a renovator and improver of the soil.

I know Mr. Editor, that I speak the unanimous sentiment of this community when I say that we all feel grateful to you for the noble course you have taken in calling the attention of strangers to the great advantages this section of our State posesses over almost any other in the United States. And when in the not distant future, our waste places shall be made to "blossom as the rose"—when in place of indolence and old fogyism, we shall have activity and energy—and when the hum of industry with her thousands of appliances, shall bring wealth into our coffers, and a population teeming with all the virtues and social qualities which go to make up a peacful and prosperous, and happy people, then will this, and the generations yet unborn, rise up to call you and your noble Northern compeers who have settled amongst us blessed.

A FARMER.

The Edenton Election.

EDENTON, N. C. May 1, 1871.

To the Editor of the North Carolinian:

After a hotly contested election our Republican Ticket for Town Officers is elected. Our men stood up boldly and bravely for the Party Ticket.

The following ticket was elected, viz: Mayor—W. R. Haughton; Commissioners—Richard Clayton, Jas. O. Cheshire, D. M. Lee, Chas. Blair, Isaiah Stewart; Treasurer—Chas. G. Manning; Town Constable—Jos. Z. Pratt.

The day is ours, notwithstanding the tricks of the opposition.

Europe.

From the papers of the 25th we see that the situation at Paris is unchanged. The firing at different points along the lines of investment continues, but the Assembly Generals have not yet resolved to make a general attack. The Communists are actively preparing for the defense. A suspension of hostilities at Neuilly was agreed on, beginning at noon yesterday. M. Thiers has refused an armistice asked by a deputation from the Masons of Paris, on the ground that the Commune can never be recognized by the Government, adding that Gen. L'Admirault had power to grant a truce whenever it was necessary. Prince Bismarck has declared that the forts about Paris will not be vacated until the final treaty is signed.

From the papers of the 26th we learn that an armistice was declared before Paris on Tuesday. The scenes attending the exodus of the suffering inhabitants of Neuilly were very Distressing and pitiable. Measures have been taken for the succor of the destitute residents. A Brussels dispatch says the Northern Railway Company has notified station masters that the blockade of Paris commences at once, and provisions destined for the city must be returned to their senders. Fort d'Issy had replied but feebly to the fire of the batteries of the Versailles Army at Meudom, Creteuil and Chatillon. It is thought the insurgents will soon evacuate the forts. The Army of the Assembly are establishing pontoon bridges across the Seine at Puteaux and Neuilly.

The Italian Minister of Justice has announced in the Chamber of Deputies a bill for the separation of Church and State.

From the papers of the 27th we learn that a heavy cannonade was opened on the 26th morning by the Assemblists on the forts south of Paris, and the gate of Point du Jour on the East. The inhabitants of Neuilly are leaving, pending the cessation of hostilities. The Germans began to leave the left bank of the Seine yesterday, and Communists at once occupied the evacuated forts, but, upon objection being made by the German commander, the Commune General withdrew his troops. A strong reaction favorable to the restoration of the Emperor Napoleon, is reported to have taken place in the provinces. Several Deputies to the Assembly desire to make the Duke D'Aumale President of the Republic. The last few days have been employed in engineering work and concentrating Versailles.

From the papers of the 28th we learn that the situation in France remains unchanged. Prince Bismarck has directed Gen. Fabrise, at Paris, to inform the Commune that if any mishap should occur to the Archbishop, the Prussians would probably interfere. The southern forts are badly damaged. Versailist projectiles fall inside the ramparts of the city, and many people were killed and wounded. The Communists will blow up the forts if it should be necessary. The Commune claim several victories. The Communal Council holds its sittings with closed doors. The Commune suffers for lack of money and men, and the National Guards openly disobey its orders. The last stand will be made in the Rue de Rivoli and Rue de Castiglione, in the immediate vicinity of the Place Vendome. Fort Mont Valerien is silent. It is now admitted that the Versailles Government is unable to pay to the Germans the first installment of indemnity, long since due. Some important movements have been executed north of Paris, while the situation of the insurgents south of Paris is said to be good. There was some fighting at Asnieres on Wednesday. The Prussians have ordered the arrest of the cure of the church of St. Denis. The Newmarket Purse was won by Baron Rothschild's filly, Haunch.

From the papers of the 26th we learn that M. Thiers has announced to the Assembly that the condition of France is painful, but he was consoled by knowing that the denounment was near. He praised the army and its fidelity. The Commune has forbidden all interference with mercantile traffic and the railways. Absentees have been given forty eight hours to report at their battalions. The Freemasons have decided to plant their banners on the ramparts. It was said that four Communists having been shot at Versailles, a proposition had been made in the Commune to shoot the Archbishop of Paris in retaliation, but it was rejected. The Versailists have expelled the Communists from the village of Las Monliniceoux and occupied it in considerable force. The people of Toulous have risen in insurrection, and the streets are filled with barricades. The Versailles batteries have bombarded the Maillot Gate and the Arch of triumph. The Communists have established a battery near Asniers to bombard Gennevilliers, Columbus and Courbevoie. The fury of the combatants is increasing. The Governor of the Invalides has been arrested. The losses of the Communists to Thursday were 9,00 killed and wounded, besides 3,000 prisoners. It is rumored that the Versailles Army has taken the advanced works at Fort Issy. The Communists have established batteries at the St. Ouen Gate in Montmartre.

From the papers of the 1st we learn that a panic occurred at Fort d'Issy, the Nationals abandoning the works. Gen. Cluseret went to the scene, but could not inspire the fugitives with courage, and a corps known as the "Avengers of Paris" was sent to reoccupy the works. A desperate fight was in progress at the last accounts. The cannonading was violent on Saturday near Asnieres. The Nationals are preparing to abandon Fort Issy, as the Versaillists have already carried the out works. A sharp engagement had occurred at Les Moulineaux, when the Versailles troops were repulsed. Fort Issy is said to be a complete wreck. The Assembly is to pass a bill providing severe penalties for illegal seizure of property in Paris. The Masonic delegates had been received by President Thiers, who stated that his Government desired peace, but could not surrender to armed insurrection. In the Commune, on Saturday, M. Grousset said there was something offensive in asking Europe to recognize the belligerency of Paris as it was asking what they already had. The Commune waged war irreproachably, but the Versaillists used explosive bullets, and exposed women and children to death by shelling some of the most thickly inhabited portions of the city. The Commune threatens to confiscate the property of the Northern Railway, if the Company does not resume the transportation of passenger and provision trains into Paris. A Masonic procession recently planted their flag on the ramparts of Paris under a heavy fire, and several of the Masons were wounded.

Kittrell's Springs.

The Raleigh Sentinel has the following in reference to the anticipated re-opening of the justly celebrated Kittrell's Springs:

Dr. George W. Blacknall, of our Yarbrough House, we are pleased to see, has announced his purpose to open this famous summer resort once again. Apart from the rare advantages nature has given to this favorite spot—beautiful scenery, delightful shade, invigorating breezes and its unrivalled mineral waters—Dr. B's reputation, bringing back the memories of its most glorious days, is sufficient to warrant the success of the enterprise. The waters of Kittrell's are known to the medical profession as a rare specific for scrofola, dispepsia, general debility, and almost all chronic diseases, while the ladies pronounce them a sine qua non. Of the Doctor's fitness to take charge of the general comforts of the health or pleasure seeker it is needless to speak. All who remember the good old days of Kittrell's and his efforts at the Yarbrough and other places know this. We understand that already a large proportion of the accommodation of the place is engaged by the leading families of the eastern and northern portions of the State, so that a most agreeable season is assured. In the meantime the Yarbrough of this city will be carefully attended to. Kittrell's, as our readers generally know, is on the Raleigh and Gaston Railroad, in the healthiest portion of the healthy county of Granville, one-fourth of a mile from the railroad, and consequently of easy access. We anticipate a pleasant and lively time this summer at this favorite resort, and wish Dr. B. all possible success.

Three distinct earthquake shocks were felt at Wayland, N. Y., on Tuesday week. Bottles standing upon the shelves were shaken sufficiently to cause alarm, their contents being considerably agitated. The direction of the movement was east and west.

Some of the women advocates of female suffrage have appealed to members of Congress for one million franked envelopes, saying that they need that number of tracts to meet the eager call for reading matter of that kind, and that they can't spare a cent for postage; it is all they can do to furnish the tracts.

The jeremiad of the Democratic Congressmen does not at all please the Cincinnati Enquirer, the leading central organ of the party. It complains that it is wanting in vigor and energy of expression, and is too much after the style of an ordinary political address to have much influence upon the public mind.

The Macon (Ga.) Telegraph & Messenger wants it made lively for those seventeen Democratic Congressmen who were absent from their seats when the final vote on the Kuklux bill was passed. It abuses them roundly, and exclaims: 'Fancy Toombs, or Stephens, or Cobb, or Jackson, or Johnson, or Colquitt, or Hardeman coming home to attend to 'private business' when a measure of such moment as this Kuklux bill was before Congress!" How do the seventeen like the company in which they are mentioned?

John Bishop, commonly known as "Devil Jack," a notorious ruffian and horse stealer in Arizona, was seized by a mob recently, tried, and sentenced to be hanged. He succeeded, however, in escaping from the clutches of Judge Lynch, but was found, two days after, hanging to the limb of a tree with an ill-spelled scrap of paper on the trunk to the effect that, as he knew he could not live long in the Territory, he had determined by suicide to cheat his enemies of the satisfaction of "cooking his goose" for him. He is said to have killed nine or ten men; but his chief offense out there was that he would not let other people's horses alone.

Hon. James M. Mason died at Alexandria on the 29th. He died of general debility, and had been unconscious for a day or two. He died without pain.

A country clergyman says he has married but one couple in a year, and they paid him nothing, staid to dinner, as it was a rainy day, and then borrowed his umbrella when they left, which he has never seen since.

A paper in Fairfield, Iowa, by some oversight, sent a copy of a recent issue, printed only on one side, to a Bloomfield paper of opposite politics, when the latter paper printed its own edition on the blank side, by way of a joke, and sent it back—radical Republican on one side and intensely Democratic on the other.

A mild-mannered Cincinnatian went home drunk on Sunday evening, quarreled with his son, a boy eighteen years old, seized a pot containing hot water in which potatoes were boiling, and threw it with the contents upon him, scalding him and knocking him senseless.

An Illinois man is under arrest for killing a friend in Texas. It is alleged that after the murder he returned to Illinois and married his victim's sister, standing at the very moment of the ceremony in the boots he had taken from the murdered man's feet.

The "Democratic" victory in New-Hampshire was n't so complete as the hungry gentlemen of the party supposed. All the returns being now in, it appears that the House of Representatives will stand, Republicans 166, "Democrats" and Labor Reformers 163. In the Senate are 5 Republicans and 5 "Democrats," with 2 vacancies. The seats of 4 "Democrats" in the House will probably be contested.

The right of women to vote under the Constitution of the United States will be argued in the Circuit Court at Charleston, S. C., this month. For allowing five colored women to vote in October last, the election officers were convicted of misdemeanor, and sentenced to pay fines and undergo imprisonment. The case has been appealed, on the ground that the Constitution and laws authorize women to vote.

Frederick William Keyser, a German who served in the Union army during the rebellion, was taken prisoner, and when last heard from was paroled and was lying dangerously sick at Wilmington, North Carolina, is wanted as one of the heirs to an estate in Germany, valued at a million and a half of dollars, and it is said that unless Keyser can be found, or certain proof of his death obtained, it will be, under the German law, seventy years before it can be divided.

There were some fearful scenes when the Nebraska State Insane Asylum, in Lincoln, was burned by an incendiary fire on the night of the 16th ult. During the early stage of the fire one of the inmates seized a club and threatened to kill all the women and children. Two insane men had been confined in an upper room, and when the watchmen released them and endeavored to get them out, they insisted upon returning to their rooms again. They perished in the flames.

Mrs. Laura Parson has sued the City of Cleveland, Ohio, for $133 33, this being one-third of the money collected in fines imposed upon gamblers against whom she had given information. Late one night last October she informed the Police of the city that her husband was then at a certain gambling-house, and that he had lost $1,400 there within ten days. The Police made a descent the next night and arrested all present, and the city authorities now dipute her claim, on the ground that the Police were aware of the existence of this gambling-house and that they could have made all the arrests at any time, without any information from her.

Judge Upson, of Michigan, last week ruled that a divorce once granted in Indiana is binding in Michigan, however it may have been procured. The question came up in the trial of a case in which the defendant, as alleged, abandoned his wife in this State, went directly to Michigan, and while there obtained a divorce in Indiana, his wife, who still remained here having no personal notice of the suit. Subsequently he married a woman in Michigan, and his first wife instituted a suit against him, with the result mentioned.

Eternal scolding and everlasting abuse of "the powers that be" may serve to keep a people in perpetual bad humor, and fret them into despondency and sullen inactivity, but nothing short of manly criticism, strict official accountability, and a firm resolve on reform, will ever get us back to the old ways of good government. Educate the impulses of the people, instil into them the right kind of sentiments, and they will act right; and as the people are our source of government, they will set up rulers fit to govern.—Telegram.

One of the great wants of the Southern country, and one to be supplied before we enter upon our career of real and rapid advancement, is more intelligence among the masses, white and black. Education has got to be attended to, and in this the press must play an active part. We must make ours a reading people, if we would have men and women of intelligent thought and progressive action; and the times demand a healthy newspaper literature and low priced papers. If not the chief educators, the press is a very important and essential auxiliary to education.—Telegram.

The Newbern Times says the U. S. District Court closed its session in that place on Thursday last. District Attorney Starbuck had fourteen criminal cases on the trial docket. Eleven of the cases were tried. There were ten convictions and one acquital. The fines and judgments on various parties commuted amounted to $1,250, exclusive of cost. The Grand Jury found twelve bills of indictment, which stand for trial at the next term, which begins on the fourth Monday of next October. The only cases of public interest adjudicated since our last report, were, U. S. vs. Virgil Williams, charged with intimidating voters; case dismissed. U. S. vs. Wilis Dixon, Geo. Brant and Wm. Jones, for intimidating voters; case dismissed, prosecuting witnesses not appearing.

Whereupon a Western editor comments thus: "The art of publishing a newspaper and making it pay, and at the same time making it please everybody, beats fidlin' higher than a kite."

A goose and a colt in Michigan have struck up an attachment of a decidedly romantic character. They fight for each other, and are constantly together. When the colt lies down, the goose will sit down close beside him, and wait until he gets up. When the colt is fed corn in the ear, he will fill his mouth with shelled corn, and drop it where the goose can pick it up.

THIS WEEK'S ADVERTISEMENTS.

We call attention to the following new advertisements in this issue

J. Salomonsky & Co.
Dr. Jas. N. Butt.

Local and Personal.

☞ Read Norfolk advertisements on our fourth page.

☞ The colored people had a pic-nic yesterday.

☞ Dr. J. N. Butt will accept our thanks for special favors.

☞ Hon. C. C. Pool is holding Court at Hertford this week.

☞ Brower is preparing another Kiln of Brick. The demand is increasing.

☞ The new houses on Pennsylvania Avenue make a splendid appearance.

☞ Our farmers are in the midst of their cotton planting.

☞ The Fisheries in this region have generally closed. The most of them did tolerably well this season.

☞ See Salomonsky's new advertisement. They believe in using printer's ink. It pays.

☞ Spades are trump, as every person with a square rod of earth to cultivate has found out.

☞ Our people are luxuriating on potatoes, early peas, and luscious strawberries.

☞ The Right Rev. Bishop Atkinson officiated in the Episcopal Church at this place on Sabath last. In the evening he administered the rite of confirmation to eleven persons.

☞ Farmers! be up and at it or the grass will get a head of you. The early Spring is tending to give vegetation the start of you. Keep down the grass and weeds, plow early, get the start of them and keep it.

☞ A friend from Pennsylvania writes boasting of their early Spring. He says "the Peach trees are beginning to bloom." Here the young peaches are the size of hickory nuts.

☞ Our amiable friend J. C. Perry has again placed us under obligations for a basket of fine Strawberries. He never forgets the Editor. A clear evidence of good sense.

☞ One of the institutions of our town is Dr. Burr's Soda Fountain. It is cooling and refreshing, on a warm Summer day, to go there and take a glass of ice Soda Water. We have tried it and speak from experience.

☞ The pupils of the Male and Female Academy had a pleasent Picnic in the Grove near Dr. Underwood's on Saturday last. A pleasant time is reported.

☞ The great speeches of our townsman Senator Pool, are being extensively copied and quoted from by the newspapers of the North. They speak of them as able, dignified and to the point.

☞ The Steamer "Elizabeth City," having been on the Stocks for painting and repairs, was launched on Saturday. In a few days she will take the place of the "George Washington" on the route between here and Norfolk.

☞ Some one who has heard them, says: "Birds sing sweetest before daylight." We frankly admit that we can't vouch for the truth of the assertion, as that is earlier than we are in the habit of getting out o'mornings. We suppose, however, that is correct.

☞ The Lock on the Canal at Deep Creek having given way, the daily line of Steamers will be interfered with until repaired. The "Thomas Jefferson" will run on its regular days at this end, and the "George Washington" on the other. Passengers and freight will be transferred.

☞ The Male and Female Academy closed on Friday last for the Summer vacation. It will reopen again early in the Autumn. Miss Osgood has established a reputation as a first class teacher, and we are glad to learn that she expects to return and take charge of the School again at its reopening.

☞ Passing through our beautiful Cemetery a few evenings since the words of the Poet—"In a little while our lips are dumb"—were involuntarily recalled to our remembrance. Aye, soon, very soon, no matter what have been our hopes and fears, our failures and successes, our sufferings and happiness, we shall each and all lie down to rest. The thought then recurred: Why should we vex our souls in striving to grapple in advance with the events we are destined to meet along the pathway which leads to the inevitable doom? Why not wait calmly and patiently for our allotted experience, endure it as we may, and leave the reason and result in the hands of Heaven? And yet from the earliest ages of the world we find among mankind civilized and barbarous, an irresistible desire to draw aside the mysterious curtain and peer into the shadows and sunshine of the infinite To Come. The disciples of Plato and Socrates consulted Delphine Oracles; the decendants of Romulus watched the flight of birds and studied the sybilline books and the entrails of victims slain on the sacrificial altar; the people of India and China, like those who dwelt on the banks of the sacred Nile, sought this vain knowledge of their Priests; the Bible is full of spiritual sights, consultations, and visions; the children of Abraham resorted to witches and sooth sayers; the Scotch "second sight" is famous and firmly believed in; the African negroes and the American Indians have their medicine men, and the inhabitants of Christendom prove the existence of this desire by frequenting the haunts of fortune tellers and clairavoyants. Foolish as all this may be, it always has been and always will be practiced down to the last syllable of recorded time.

☞ How Elizabeth City is improving is the universal remark of every visitor. The music of the hammer and saw we so devoutly prayed for two years ago is now heard all around us. How it cheers, inspiring hope and confidence as it ushers in the "good time coming." Even old fogies now own up that the editor's predictions were not of the "stuff dreams are made of."

☞ The election for Municipal officers passed off at this place on Monday very quietly. The Republican ticket was elected by a large majority. The following is the vote:

Republicans.		Democrats.
For Mayor		For Mayor
George W. Colb	231	Frank Vaughan	16
For Commissioners.		For Commissioners.
Dr. Wm. Underwood,	216	W. W. Griffin,	13
Wm. G. Pool,	209	R. F. Overman,	12
Charles Guirkin	224	Jno. A. Raper,	12
Moses Commander,	217	Zenas Fearing,	12
Emanuel Davis,	226	Timothy Hunter,	12

Now that we have a live Board of Commissioners let us hope that something will be done in the way of public improvement, and that the healthfulness and general welfare of the City will be looked after. Much can be done. We have faith to believe that something will be.

☞ A friend has sent us a copy of the Edenton Sentinel, dated February 14th, 1846. We find a number of interesting items in it. Among them is a graphic account of "A Fortunate Escape" of Capt. Thos. W. Butler—who was well known by many of our readers—from shipwreck near Martinique. After much suffering and many perils he arrived safely, with his schooner "Concord," at Elizabeth City on the 2nd of January 1846. The "Marriage" department opens with:—

"Here the girls and here the widow
Always cast their earliest glance
And with smileless face, consider
If they, too, won't stand a chance
To make some clever fellow double
In bliss, and often too——in trouble."

The "Cossack Guards" are notified by H. A. Gilliam, O. S., to meet for parade, and J. W. Skinner, O. S., gives notice to the "Edenton Guards" to meet "in front of the Court House, armed and equiped as the law directs, with 9 blank and 9 ball cartridges." Alexander Spense offers $20 reward for his "negro girl Lucy," and T. C. Gregory $50 for his "two negro boys Austin and Joe." There is also an editorial attempt at wit which is simmered down thusly: "Taking a negro by the head because he refuses obedience is a seizure of wool for non-payment of duties." The Sentinel was "published every Saturday morning by J. H. Barclift, at $2.50 per annum—payable in advance."

☞ Several of our Northern friends, having read the great speeches of Senator Pool and the evidence before the Senate investigating Committee, have written us inquiring whether we are publishing the whole truth so far as Eastern North Carolina is concerned,—in short whether we are not concealing the facts to induce immigration to this particular locality. Now we take it that this is not very complimentary to us. Our friends have known us a long while and we supposed they had found out years ago that we were not in the practice of deceiving people either by dissembling or publishing untruths. Whenever the time arrives requiring a departure from our well established rule, making it impolitic for us to publish the truth, we propose vacating the editorial tripod. No, we admit—the evidence is before the civilized world—that the Ku-Klux-Klan have been operating shamefully, outrageously, barbarously in this State, disgracing her fair fame at home and abroad, but they have confined their operations to sections far remote from here. It is characteristic of the cowardly organization never to show themselves in localities so strongly patriotic and loyal as the counties of Eastern North Carolina. Hence we have not been and never will be—unless a Democratic President should be elected in 1872, which will not happen—interfered with by the Ku-Klux, for this is not congenial soil for their operations. The public sentiment is too unanimous in favor of law and order to make it healthy for them here. As for us, we conceal nothing—keep nothing back. The man who takes and reads the North Carolinian is kept thoroughly posted in everything pertaining to this portion of the good "Old North State."

Farmers send on your grain at morning, noon or night, for the enterprising and obliging firm D. Spencer & Co., are running the little Steam Mill.

New Goods received weekly at J. Salomonsky & Co's., on Cor. Church and Road Sts., in the Barney Tisdale Store.

At the little Mill by the Long Bridge there is a supply of choice flour, meal, etc. It is so nice that those who try it at retail, come and buy it at whole sale.

Charleston April 28th 1871.

In the week since our last report the receipts of corn reach 25,000 bushels, and, though there has been a good demand for consumption, the supply continues abundant. Cargo sales of about 18,000 bushels have been made during the week at 85@88@89c; 85 for mixed white, and 88c. for cargo, 2400 Bushels good white from North Carolina.

Shipments must now cease, indeed have, from Norfolk and Baltimore, whence our Market has been overstocked, and with a reduction of the stock we look for an improved tone and a reaction in prices.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Travellers are always liabe to sudden attacks of Dysentery and Cholera morbus, and these occuring when absent from home, are very unpleasant. The Pain Killer may always be relied upon in such cases. As soon as you feel the symptons, take one teaspoonful in a gill of new milk and molasses and a gill of hot water, with pepper and drink hot. Repeat the dose every hour if required. If the pains be severe, bathe the bowels and back with the medicine clear.

Dr Sweet says it takes out the soreness in cases of bone setting faster than any thing he ever applied.

Fishermen so often exposed to hurts by having their skin pierced with hooks, and fins of fish can be relieved by bathing with the Pain Killer as soon as the accident occurs; in this way the anguish is soon abated; bathe as often as once in five minutes, say three or four times, and you will seldom have any trouble.

The bites and scratches of dogs and cats are soon cured by bathing with the Pain Killer clear, 45-4t.

MARRIAGE GUIDE.—Every one his own Doctor. A private instructor for married persons or those about to be married, both male and female, in everything concerning the physiology and relations of our sexual system, and the production and prevention of offspring, including all the new discoveries never before given in the English language, by Wm. Young, M. D. This is really a valuable and interesting work. It is written in plain language for the general reader, and is illustrated with numerous engravings. All young married people, or those contemplating marriage, and having the least impediment to married life, should read this book. It discloses secrets that every one should be acquainted with; still it is a book that must be locked up and not lie about the house. It will be sent to any address on receipt of 50 cts. Address Dr. Wm. Young, No. 416 Spruce Street above Fourth, Philadelphia. 19—6m.

The Use of Soda and Saleratus.

I have seen house keepers who seem to be ignorant of the effect of soda upon the materials used in cooking. They seem to have an idea that soda alone, has a tendency to make anything rise. Hence they use it indiscriminately in bread, biscuit or cake. Years ago I knew an old lady who had this idea, and it was impossible to convince her to the contrary. Whenever she was afraid that the bread would not be light enough, she would add a quantity of saleratus. Her bread was often as yellow as saffron and not fit to eat. I often see yellow piecrust, especially upon chicken and meat pies, plainly showing that soda has been used. Soda or saleratus should never be used unless the bread or pastry is sour, or unless you add to the flour, or to the dry soda, before mixing, a proportionate quantity of acid—such as cream of tartar. If you add soda alone to a perfectly sweet material, it has no more effect in making it rise than would so much salt. It will, however, affect the flavor and color of the material. When using soda, be careful to use only enough to neutralize the acid. Some persons consider the use of soda at all in cooking, as positively injurious.—They labor under a mistake, I think.—Where the alkali and acid are properly proportioned and come together in the moist material, they completely neutralize each other and form a compound—Rochelle salt—the presence of which in small quantities is not perceptible, nor is it considered unwholesome. When too much soda has been used in bread or biscuit, it is readily manifested by the color. In cookies or sponge cake, it is not so easily detected, as the yellow tinge may be supposed to be due to the egg used. I am not thus deceived. The color given to cake and cookies by eggs is a bright, rich, golden yellow, while that from the use of too much soda is a dull, smutty, heavy-looking yellow. There are those who consider the free use of soda as very beneficial to health. They make a serious mistake. Soda is sometimes used as a medicine, to correct acidity in the stomach. It is better at such times to take the quantity prescribed mixed in a little water, and not in the food. The free use, for a little length of time, of cookies, cake, etc., in which there is a superabundance of alkali, will result in an impaired digestion.

Decomposing Bones with Ashes.

A correspondent in Indiana, living in a wooded locality, desires information how to utilize bones at the least cost, and render them soonest available as manure. The process is a very simple one. In many parts of the State of Indiana, wood is chiefly used for fuel, and the value of the ashes for fertilizing purposes is very well understood. The lye stand takes considerable quantities, and after they do duty there, they go to the kitchen garden or the orchard, or some particular place where they are thought to be most needed. But there is a considerable surplus over the demands of the lye leach, and this surplus may be employed with perfect success in reducing bones to the condition of food plants.

Bones should be saved, and if the prudent housewives throughout the country properly understood their value as a fertilizer, and how easily it is to reduce them to the proper condition, they would not permit them to be thrown away and lost. The kitchen garden may be rendered much more productive by their use. They are worth twice as much for ashes as manure when reduced, and ashes will reduce them.

The method of doing this is to put ashes and bones into barrels or boxes under a shed, or ash-house, or cellar, in about equal quantities, and then keep them constantly moist with soapsuds; if hot, so much the better. The water should not be applied in such quantities as to leach the ashes, as that would carry off much of the alkaline matter necessary to reduce the bones. Thus in a few months the bones will be entirely disintegrated, and the entire mass may then be taken out and thoroughly mixed, ready for spreading and incorporating into the soil, and making a most excellent fertilizer for the kitchen garden, orchard, or field.

Narrow-Guage Railways.

The American Railway Times says: A civil engineer in Texas advocates the construction of narrow-guage railways with wooden rails as adapted to thinly populated districts in Texas, where trafic is light and it is utterly impossible to get money to construct ordinary roads. Charters have been obtained for two such roads, and they are likely to be built soon. A railway, thirty inches wide and eleven miles long, is to be built in Green county, Tenn., at a cost of $20,000. The rails are of wood, and are to be stripped with iron. This is getting the cost of railways down to a pretty low figure. As the construction of these narrow-guage lines has got to be accepted as a "fixed fact" in all the States, it would be well for the different Legislatures to pass laws designating the width, so that the narrow-guage system shall be identical throughout. The Railway Committee of the Massachusetts Legislature has recommended a guage of three feet, and doubtless this will receive the legislative sanction. It is to be hoped that other States will conform with this movement. The best engineering authorities in this country and in Europe are in favor of three feet for the narrow-guage railway system.

As two civil engineers were at work in the wilds of Michigan a couple of weeks ago, eighteen or twenty miles from any camp, one of them began to suspect that the other had become insane—a suspicion which was made certainty when his companion came to him and said: "I wish you would hide my revolver, and the axe, for I came very near killing you with them last night. I got the revolver and cocked it at your head three times, but something told me not to kill you with that, but to get the ax, and then I was commanded not to kill you then, but I am afraid I will if you don't hide them, and God knows I don't want to hurt any man." This was not very pleasing information, and he did his best to presuade him to go back to the camp. Failing in this he left him, went back alone, procured assistance, and the unfortunate man is new in an asylum.

An old citizen of Morrisville, Vt., and his wife died very suddenly on the evening of the 4th inst., within ten minutes of each other. He was eighty-nine and she eighty-four years of age. A lady living with them left them for a few minutes, the wife lying on the bed and the husband sitting in a chair. When she returned the old lady was dead, and the husband, whom she hesitated to tell, conversed some, and before friends could be summoned, died without knowing that his wife had passed away. They had lived together sixty-four years.

The editor of a Vicksburg paper, in the course of a short article, calls the manager of a rival sheet an anonymous coward, a malignant caitiff who stabs in the dark, a cowardly hound, a mockery of a man, and a miserable wretch. This is quite mild; when this Vicksburg editor gets angry he talks with greater vehemence.

DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE.

OF VALUABLE

NORTH CAROLINA LANDS,

FOR SALE BY

GEORGE D. POOL.

Real Estate Agent,

ELIZABETH CITY, N. C.

In presenting my list of lands and other properties for sale, I would say that no section of the United States offers such inducements for capitalisis and emigrants, as this section of North Carolina. In longevity and healthfulness, it will compare favorably with any where; and in easy and cheap transportation of products to market, in pleasantness of climate, in the sociability of the people, in great fertility, and durability of soil, no section can equal it.

A railroad will soon be built to Weldon, putting this place in direct communication by Rail, with the whole United States. This, together with our great fishing, farming and manufacturing interests, and certain early completion of already projected works of improvement for putting in nearer, cheaper and easier communication with the Ocean, will render this one of the most important commercial, and manufacturing points on the Southern country.

A Steam Saw and Grist Mill in the town of Nixonton 8 miles from E. City. This Mill has a fine wharf and store attached on deep navigable water, the engine is 40 horse power, and all in good order. It 48 one of the finest locations to be found any where for custom work, and for getting good saw logs easily and cheaply. Price $4,000 cash.

Adjoining the mill property is 40 acres of fine land on the River, with three houses, all for $1200. Near the same is a good two story dwelling and 13 acres of land for $2,000, and a good one story dwelling, with one acre of land for $300.

Also two fine farms in Pasquotank county, 10 miles from E. City, within half mile of church, school house and post office. One tract contains about 400 acres, with fair buildings and mostly cleared, and the other contains 300 acres, with good two story dwelling, large barn, and other outhouses, both are offered at $20 per acre, one third cash, balance in one and two years.

A valuable site for a hotel at Nag's Head, 40 miles from Elizabeth City, and 50 miles from Edenton. This is situated immediately on the Ocean, and is a famous Summer resort for invalids, and those seeking health, comfort, and amusements during the summer months. It is in direct communication by steamboats and railroad with all parts of North Carolina, Virginia, and the North; and is equal in natural advantages to Newport, or Cape May. Visitors flock to this famous summer resort by hundreds and thousands, and a large amount of money can be made by a hotel. A charter has been obtained from the Legislature of N. C., for a joint stock company to build the hotel. There is now an old hotel on the spot, which could be cheaply repaired and bought for $3,000. This hotel, though imperfectly kept, cleared the proprietor last season, over $3,000. For a man or a company, having some capital, this is one of the finest chances to make money at hotel keeping to be found anywhere. The early attention of the public is invited to this property.

A fine steam saw and grist mill at Hertford, the county seat of Perquimans County, N. C., 18 miles from Elizabeth City. This mill has a fifty horse power engine, now in good running, two pairs of best French burr stones, and two upright saws. The house has a brick basement, and the building is large and in good order. There is one and a half acres of land belonging to this property, and a good two story dwelling, and other out-houses. The farm contains 400 acres of the finest land, lies immediately on Albemarle Sound where the water is 12 miles wide, and 18 to 20 feet deep, has got buildings, and fine neighborhood. The fishery is on the farm and goes with it. It has a new seine 2,500 yards long, and all the necessary boats, buildings, &c., (which cost over $15,000 two years ago.) The fishery alone, of a good season, will make from 5 to $10,000 profit to the owner. This property is offered at forced sale for the low price of $20,000, $7,000 cash, balance on easy times.

This farm has a splended two-story dwelling upon it, large barn, 40 by 60 feet, a large number of outhouses, by splended trees and shrubbery, is in a strong Union neighborhood, and altogether the most desirable place in the county. A little over one-half of this land is cleared, and the balance is covered with the finest yellow pine, poplar, ash and other timber. Price $30 per acre—one-third cash, balance in one and two years with interest. Title reserved.

A valuable small farm ¾ of a mile from E. City, containing about 47 acres all cleared but about 6 acres, and in a good state of improvement. Price $10,000, one-third cash January 1, next balance in two equal annual instalments with interest at the rate of six per cent.

A farm of 370 acres 8 miles from town by water, and 12 miles by land, is offered for sale for $10,000 in easy payments. This tract of land lies immediately on the River which is 4 miles wide and washes the farm its whole length on one side, and a branch of the River one mile wide, binds it on one end. The land is well adapted to raising corn, wheat, cotton, oats, peas, &c., lies high and dry, and is susceptible of the highest improvement. Fronting and looking over, as it does, two large sheets of navigable water, where steamers and sailing vessels are constantly passing, carrying freight and passengers to all parts of the country, its location and surroundings, are of the most fascinating and desirable character. There is a fishery on it ready for working a seine 2,500 yards long, and which commands a portion of both streams of water, and can be made immensely profitable. The price charged is, low, and the purchase a very desirable one. The buildings consist of a good two-story dwelling and out-houses.

A tract of valuable land, containing 356 acres, with fine two story dwelling containing 9 rooms and cook-room. Servant's house with 3 rooms, large barns and stables, all necessary and convenient out-houses, 3 tenant-houses near town, and immediately on the River. About 100 acres of this land is in fine wood and timber, balance in a fine state of cultivation. It has 8,000 grape vines one year old, 3,500 peach, apple and dwarf pear trees, five acres in strawberries which yielded an immence profit this year, ten acres in Lawton and other rare varieties of black-berries, 15 to 20,000 young peach trees with other choice fruits too numerous to mention. This farm has a public road on one side, and the River on the other, where strangers come daily to the landings to receive the fruits and vegetables, and carry them down to Norfolk, Baltimore, Phila., or New York. The land is finely adapted to raising corn, wheat, cotton, oats, and all other field crops.

The owner of this farm offers to sell in tracts, to suit purchasers, say in 50 to 100 acre tracts, and at prices ranging from 35 to $80 per acre, according to location, buildings, &c.

There is also on this farm a fine fishery, where a seine 1,000 yards long, and 20 feet deep is hauled every Spring. Herring, Shad, Rockfish, Sturgeon and other valuable fish, are caught by thousands at every draw of the seine. And the profits are frequently large. This shery of itself is worth nearly as much as is harged for the whole property. The terms will be liberal. This is probably the finest opportunity ever offered for a profitable investment.

☞ Fishery has an office, and two houses for hands besides fish house. Then some 500 to 1,000 loads of best fish manure on hand, besides over 5,000 loads of compost made ready for use. This goes with the farm.

A desirable house and lot in the town of Elizabeth City on the corner of two principal streets, the principal one, and situated in the best business locality in the town. The lot contains about two acres of land, and the buildings consist of a fair dwelling three stories high, containing eight rooms, all in good order, another two story building with four rooms and pantries, dairy, smokehouses, stables, &c. The dwelling has a good cellar under it. There is room on the front lot to erect two good stores, and they would occupy the best stand in the town for merchandize.

Another valuable tract of land in Pasquotank county one mile from the town, on the river, and containing 156 acres. Good dwelling house and other outbuildings. Land fine. About 120 acres cleared, balance in wood and timber. This farm is surrounded by parties from the North who have purchased all the land adjoining. TO THE PUBLIC.

The Land and Lumber Company having a large amount of Real Estate of their own to dispose of, and their business having increased to such an extent, they think it prudent to decline acting further as Commission Agents for the sale of lands belonging to others. They will however be glad at all times to furnish every facility to parties coming to Elizabeth City with a desire to look at the country and make purchases if they find it to their interest to do so.

The following list of property, owned by the Company, is offered for sale on the most reasonable terms. Their object now is to acquire a larger monied capital for the purpose of further developing their unimproved lands and carrying out their original design of increasing the Commerce and General Trade of Elizabeth City.

As there are others in the Commission Business, parties are referred to their advertisement for further information.

ELIZABETH CITY.

The following desirable list of Properties in Elizabeth City are offered at very reduced paices for cash or on time payments at rates which make any of them excellent investments for capitalists. We feel confident that this City is destined to become a large place and property will advance rapidly. Emigration is now tending Southernward and the feeling is in universal favor toward Elizabeth City.

A large two-story dwelling known as the Personage, with fine double Ptazza, front and back, large out kitchen, stables, carriage house, with 17 acres of ground well enclosed. This ground is all within the corporation of the City, and is well situated to lay out in building lots and make out of it ten fold the price asked for it.

A two-story dwelling containing ten rooms, 10,000 gallon cistern and all necessary out-houses, with large lot. Situated on Main Street. A Vacant Lot no better located and not so large as this was sold recently for $1600 cash.

A large brick store house and wharf situate on Water street; in E. City, comprising three lots with 400 feet of water front. permanently wharfed for the accommodation of large vessels. There is erected on these lots a large two-story brick building, 50 by 80 feet, well fitted up for a wholesale or retail trade at present occupied by the "Yankee Store."

A House and Lot on Riverside Avenue. House 20ft front by 50 ft deep. Containing eight rooms with Pantry and Cellar, all well finished. modern style, and having all necessary out buildings. The Wharf Lots are 200ft deep and will be sold to any size desired along the River. Among them are some most eligible situations for Store Houses, Mills and Manufactories of any kind as there is a fine harbor immediately in front of them, having 30ft of water, sufficient for vessels of any capacity. Along Pennsylvania Avenue are offered some of the finest and choicest lots, for dwellings in town at prices varying according to location. This will be the finest street in town, is 80 feet wide, size of Lot 100ft front by 200ft deep. There are now a number of first class residences being erected on this street. Immediately in the vicinity of these Lots the Company have erected a large Planing Mill, Sash, Blind and Door Factory at a cost of near $20,000 and also their Saw Mill at a cost of near $15,000. That now is the proper time to invest in those Lots there can be no doubt, as they will double in value in a very short time. Lots not near so good as these, are now selling in other parts of the City at more than double the price asked for these.

This will also make good farm land—will be sold for one thousand dollars.

Also one other tract of land containing 154 acres situated immediately on the Pasquotank River ten miles from Elizabeth City, valuable for wood, and is excellent farming lands, would be sold for six dollars per acre.
